Overview

The community development has shifted focus towards 'resilience-based development' by supporting sustainable livelihoods among Jordanians and refugees. With over 19% of unemployment rate, poor job growth and inability of the Jordanian economy to absorb the increasing number of youth entering the labor market, there is not only a socio-economic challenge but also a main challenge of creating job opportunities. Therefore, this gap represented the need to create Caritas Jordan livelihood sector.

Caritas Jordan livelihood response

Caritas Jordan livelihood sector has designed a number of interventions to ensure dignified and sustainable livelihoods among neediest groups.

Caritas Jordan's program came in response to refugees' survival needs, providing them with income generating livelihood opportunities.

The Program focuses on building the capacities of the most vulnerable individuals within the Jordanian community.

This includes providing training sessions on basic Life skills, occupational training, entrepreneurships and employability, followed by providing them with start-up materials then mentoring.
